Picture a young dude who grew up in the suburbs of Baltimore County, loved music and decided to hold off on college to pursue a career in rap. Meet Darius Jaron Exum, widely known as Jay Verze -- 20 year old rapper from Owings Mills, Maryland.

From the electric drum kit he received at seven to that snowy winter day when his pen first touched paper, music, Hip Hop, had claimed him as her own. In 2005, he took things to another level. He grew his musical aptitude by taking keyboard lessons and learning how to play the trumpet. That same year, a very important event took place in his life—a talent show. With hopeful stars in his eyes, he signed up to audition. Sadly, he could not make the cut. It was very difficult for him to overcome this lack of recognition as it lingered in his mind as a sign of poor skill.

Verze was not content with failure and he came back stronger than ever! In seven short years later, August of 2012, he released his debut project “21117 (TwoElevenSeventeen)”. It was received well by many and earned him the title as one of Baltimore’s most promising rappers in the Baltimore Sun newspaper.

After coming so far, with his microphone in hand, he still stands with one goal—perfecting the craft he knows and loves. With the release of his sophomore project “Life Through My Dark Shades”, there’s no denying it; Jay is on the right path to being a worldwide icon.
